

Rania Maaraba – hierarchy

Diagram:

The East Asian Languages of Japanese, Korean, Chinese, Vietnamese and such are all derived from the original paintings of the writing system found in modern day China known as Jiahu. These simple signs and symbols have trickled down to create several of the modern day character writing languages as we know it. The traditional Jiaguwen(left) and Hanzi(right) are the A-relationships of all the character languages as we know it.

Works Cited:

Encyclopædia Britannica, inc. (n.d.). Chinese calligraphy. Encyclopædia Britannica. <https://www.britannica.com/art/Chinese-calligraphy>

History and evolution of Chinese characters I oldest characters. The Chairman's Bao. (n.d.). https://www.thechairmansbao.com/blog/brief-history-chinese-characters/#:~:text=The%20consensus%20amongst%20experts%20is,shell%20and%20bone%20writing%E2%80%9D\)..)