

Rania Maaraba – question

Since we're starting to branch out more now and work on all the parts of the programs you give us, why is there so many other aspects of the code that we don't program? Some I know are just unit tests, but does C++ always require lots of sub programs to do semi-simple tasks?